

Bristol Standard Achieved

Big congratulations go to Khaas, for completing and achieving the first year of the Bristol Standard for Play. Khaas, which means 'special' in Urdu, Hindi and Bengali, is an organisation that provides support to disabled Asian children and their families.

Achieving the Bristol Standard is great recognition of all their hard work and their commitment to continuously striving for improvement and they have identified some great targets they are now going to work on. Frida Malik and Saiqa Khan, Managers of the project, said:

'Completing the Bristol Standard was an achievement for us. It was a positive reflection and self-evaluation of the good practice that we do. We have very dedicated play staff who all contributed towards completing the Bristol Standard. It highlighted the small day to day tasks which we carry out without giving a second thought. It also gave us an insight into our weaknesses and strengths, and how we can further improve our practices, with future changes. We are now looking forward to completing our First Interim Submission.'

Well done Khaas, we look forward to hearing about your progress.

If you work at a play setting and are interested in finding out more about the Bristol Standard, please contact one of the Play Mentors at BAND, Fenella Hemus, Haidi Haskins or Michelle Smith. We'd love to hear from you.
